Peking University
Journal of Legal Studies

Since its' establishment in 1904 Peking University Law School has been the leading institution of legal education and research in China, engaging in a broad range of academic discourse and collaboration at home and abroad. The Peking University Journal of Legal Studies will advance the global understanding of legal issues throughout China.

Published annually this ENGLISH language journal is the first and only legal periodical published by China's leading law school. At the suggestion of Wei Luo, Associate Law Librarian & Director of Technical Services at Washington Univ. Law Library, Bridge Publishing Group LLC is pleased to offer this unique and important new addition to law libraries throughout North America.

In this inaugural issue the editors (all legal scholars in China) have included eight works in such areas as copyright criminal law, deposit insurance, rural legal services in China, antitrust regulation of patent pools, China's price-setting system, financial conglomerates, an analysis of homicide victims in China, and more.

With China's increasingly important role on the world stage this new journal is a welcome addition to legal scholarship.
